STATE CAPITAL COMMISSION

GOVERNOR MAY NAME MEMBERS THIS WEEK WHETHER SUPREME COURT HAS RENDERED DECISION OR NOT.

Tate Brady of Tulsa, J. B. A. Robertson of Chandler and Dr. Leo Bennett of Muskogee Slated.

Oklahoma City, Ok., July 20.—Gov. Haskell stated today that he would probably announce appointments of the state capitol commission after Monday morning, or when the additional land options connected with the contemplated removal of the state capital are placed before him in legal shape. Two new options have been submitted since the day of the election. Current rumor in the hotel lobbies gives places on the commission to Tate Brady of Tulsa, J. B. A. Robertson of Chandler and Dr. Leo Bennett of Muskogee, the last named being the republican member; however, the Governor declined to confirm this list when seen today. The positions pay $4,000 per year. The appointments are to be made, it is understood irrespective of whether the Supreme Court has by that time rendered its decision upon the governor's application for a writ of prohibition against the Logan county district court. The governor has been advised, it is stated, by attorneys that the executive department is not within the jurisdiction of the judicial department of the state in exercising political functions.

E. C. N. TEACHERS LEAVE FOR THEIR HOMES

The summer term of the East Central State Normal having concluded, various members of the faculty are going elsewhere on visits and for recreation; some to their homes for the balance of the summer.

Mrs. Era A. Ganong, teacher of Commercial Branches, goes to Edmond where she will be with her son. Miss Bertha M. Ruble, teacher of Domestic Science, goes to Alva for several days visit with her sister, afterwards she will go to Caney, Kansas to visit her mother and old home. Miss Josephine Clarke, teacher of Latin, goes to her home in Oklahoma City. Miss Charlotte Anderson, teacher of piano music will leave Saturday of Colorado Springs via Oklahoma City.

Dr. W. M. Hailey Honored

McAlester, Okla., July 20.—Dr. D. M. Hailey returned home this afternoon from Detroit, where he was elected grand esteemed lecturing knight at the Elks' National meeting. Over one hundred Elks met him at the train with automobiles decorated with the colors of the order and escorted him to the Elks' Building. One of the most brilliant receptions of the season was tendered him at the club-rooms tonight.

REVOKES ALL NIGHT LICENSE OF N. Y. CAFES

Mayor of New York Investigates Conditions of Night Life in Secret Visits.

New York, July 20.—It became known today Mayor Gaynor's last crusade against the granting of all-night license to cafes and restaurants in the uptown theatre district was the result of an incognito tour into night cafe life which the Mayor made about a week ago. According to the story which came out today the Mayor in conversation at a Brooklyn club late one night heard from an acquaintance a vivid account of some strange scenes witnessed in an all-night cafe in the so-called "white light district." The Mayor interrupted the narrator to say that he could hardly believe such things could be true. To decide whether they were or not he offered to go at once on a tour of inspection after the fashion of Haroun Ralschaid, the romantic hero of "Arabian Nights." The offer was accepted and in the Mayor's automobile the two made a rapid tour of the night cafe district, dropping at a number of the best known places. The Mayor, according to the story, wore a slouch hat and was not recognized. A day or two later the Mayor revoked the all-night licenses of several well known restaurants and announced that he would not allow the issuance of license except to those that catered to legitimate trade of night workers.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

While driving along Broadway about five o'clock yesterday afternoon Prof. Melton with Misses Jeanette Erwin and Mamie White, happened to an almost serious accident.

From some unknown cause the horse Prof. Melton was driving became frightened and ran plunging and kicking down Main street. Miss Erwin in endeavoring to get out of the buggy was thrown violently to the ground—but fortunately sustained no serious injury. Miss White and Mr. Melton remained in the buggy until the plunging animal struck the barriers at Broadway and Main, making a sharp turn and pitching them over board. Neither of them was hurt seriously.

The horse tore loose from the vehicle and dashed back up Broadway. Aside from breaking the shafts and harness, and the general fright no further damage was done.

Within a few minutes the excitement had abated, and Miss Erwin was heard to calmly ask Miss White, "Shall we go to see the pictures now?"

"But why did you try to get out?" asked some one. "I was afraid the horse would go to kicking," was the logical answer.

The bystanders were of one opinion that the horse imitated kicking very nicely for a few minutes, at least.

THE INSECURITY OF EARTHLY THINGS

THE HOLY CITY A PLACE OF INFINITE BEAUTY, A POPULAR PLACE, HOMELIKE, AND AN ETERNAL CITY.

The subject of last evening's services was "The Holy City." This evening Rev. Hendrick will preach on the "Unpardonable Sin" and Rev. Carter will sing, "What Would You Do If the Door Were Shut."

Last evening was indeed one of the greatest so far in the series of services.

The evangelists pictured the Holy City in prose and poetry, story and song.

Rev. Hendrick read Revelation the twenty-first chapter, saying "With these verses before us, I wish to talk about the Holy City." Continuing he pointed to the fact that the history of the world is, merely the history of its cities, calling to mind the instability and insecurity of all earthly cities, both ancient and modern. The cities of the ancients have crumbled into decay and passed from the earth, likewise, the minister would impress his hearers that the great cities of today will inevitably live only in history.

We have no city that will endure, all earthly things are insecure. Houses lands, money, nothing is permanent—spoke the evangelist. There is nothing here to stay. You are not here to stay. I am not here to stay—none are here to stay.

Rev. Hendrick, when he had related how a prosperous merchant had advertised that he was "here to stay" but passed away as others do.

The speaker pleaded with the unsaved to board the ship of Zion for the Holy City, where things are permanent, safe and secure forever more and not wait until opportunity had knocked and gone.

Speaking of who should enter the gates of pearl, he said, "truly, that nothing unclean would enter there."

He believes that heaven is a popular place and that great crowds are marching heavenward. "Everybody likes to see the crowd, be with the crowd and if you want to get into the best crowd in the world get into the crowd marching heavenward" admonished the expounder of God's word. He continued, "I love not only to think of heaven as a popular place, but as a busy place." He seemed to think that if one could do great work here he would be given an opportunity to do even greater things in the Holy City. And that all drudgery, worry, failure, disappointment, want, human ills and sorrow will be unknown.

The little children will be there, loved ones there and heaven will be a place of sweet, unalloyed eternal happiness.

He points to the Holy City as a city eternal, and one attainable.

Everybody can go there if they would.

The earnest divine made an eloquent plea to have more heaven on earth, and for all to prepare to enjoy eternity in the City Beautiful.

Land Sale Controversy Settled.

Oklahoma City, Ok., July 20.—A controversy between the school land lessees and the state school land commission, involving the basis of valuation that should be placed on improvements, has been settled. The commission is now pushing to completion plans for reopening the sale of the lands. There are yet to be sold about 1,650,000 acres, of which 600,000 are agricultural lands with preferred right privileges. These lands are situated largely in the western and northwestern parts of the state and are to be sold at auction on forty years' time, the sale in each county being made at the court house door on certain advertised days. The sale was to have been resumed Aug. 15, but it probably will be Sept. 1 before plans are perfected. Part of the state school lands were sold last winter, but the sale was stopped on account of the commission's appropriation being exhausted.

Mr. J. B. Baker of Lula is transacting business in Ada today.

SENATOR GORE ON GRANDFATHER CLAUSE

"This amendment is clearly within the purview and limitation of the fifteenth amendment. We do not go as far as Massachusetts has gone. We do not follow the example of Connecticut, California, Minnesota and Wisconsin, which in 1858 absolutely defeated negro suffrage altogether. Ohio, in 1867, voted down an amendment for negro suffrage by more than 50,000 majority. Kansas, the same year, rejected the same amendment by 8,988. In 1871 a republican congress, with the approval of President Grant abolished the local government in the District of Columbia in order to get rid of negro domination. The reason for this action was forcibly stated by Col. McClure, one of the fathers and founders of the republican party, and an intimate friend of President Lincoln, when he said, 'A very few years made it an imperative necessity for congress to disfranchise the entire people of the District of Columbia solely to escape the ignorant and profligate rule of the negro. The same republican authority that had enfranchised the negro under the shade of the nation's capital was compelled to declare that his disfranchisement had become an imperative necessity to protect property and maintain social order. The southern states which have by ingenious constitutional devices practically disfranchised the negro, have simply followed the teaching of a republican congress and president which disfranchised him in the capital city.'

"The democrats do not believe that ignorance should misrule intelligence, or that vice should misgovern virtue. Nine tenths of the republicans in Oklahoma agree with the democrats on this proposition. The negroes hold the balance of power in fourteen counties today, and will soon hold the balance of power in fourteen more. Waggoner has 1,724; Logan, 1,957; Oklahoma 2,121, and Muskogee, 3,179.

"Race riots have been worse on the east side since the ballot came to the negro than before. Recent bloody events shed an ominous and lurid light upon the gravity of the situation. We must act soon or we act too late. Every white man should vote for the suffrage amendment, on August 2.

"The alarming feature of the republican attitude on the election law is the fact that it gives conclusive proof that the republicans would, if they could, repeal the Jim Crow car law. THE SAME SPIRIT THAT WOULD RTTAIN THE MIXED BALLOT BOX WOULD RESTORE THE MIXED CAR."

Senator Owen says:

"The language is so plain that no analysis of the grandfather clause seems to be needed. With certain exceptions it denies the suffrage to any person who is not able to read and write any section of the constitution of the state of Oklahoma. It is equally plain that it does not include within its provisions any person who, on January 1, 1866, or prior thereto, was entitled to vote under any form of government, or who, at that time, resided in some foreign nation, and their descendants. The effect of this is to allow Indians and white, who cannot read and write the constitution, to vote, and EXCLUDES NEGROES WHO CANNOT VOTE. This provision will take care of old federal and confederate soldiers whose education was prevented by the war.

PATTEN CLOSING

DEALS IN COTTON

IS THOUGHT TO BE WITHDRAW-

ING FROM THE MARKET

ENTIRELY

New York, July 20.—James A. Patten of Chicago arrived here today and is closing the balance of his deals in cotton. Mr. Patten's commitments have already been greatly reduced, and it is thought that he expects to liquidate the balance of his holdings of spot cotton by the end of this month.

It is also stated that Mr. Patten has cleared up all his transactions, in wheat, having sold out the balance of his holdings last Monday. Whether or not Mr. Patten will re-enter the wheat or cotton market on an extensive scale is not definitely known. But the impression among his friends is that he will not engage in active speculation in either of these staples for some time to come, in any event.

FIFTY CENTS PER PUPIL IS SCHOOL APPORTIONMENT

Guthrie, Ok., July 20.—The semi-annual common school apportionment of July 1 will be 50c per pupil. According to the scholastic census there are 518,084 children of age, with $259,042 available with the school land department for apportionment. The division agreed upon tomatokes the annual apportionment for 1910 $1.50 per pupil. The 1906 territorial apportionment was $31,742 for 225,945 pupils, or about 15c each, and the year following it was $33,935.70, or nearly 17c per pupil.

HON. JAS. A. NORMAN, THE CHEROKEE, IN TOWN

THE ORIGINAL SEQUOYAH MAN, CANDIDATE FOR CORPORATE COMMISSIONER

Hon. Jas. A. Norman, of Muskogee, candidate for democratic nomination as a member of the State Corporation Commission, was in the city during the day. Mr. Norman is well known throughout Oklahoma and possesses a personal acquaintance with nearly all the citizens of the Cherokee Nation. He first became prominent as the original advocate of Sequoyah, drawing the draft of the call for the Sequoyah Constitutional Convention. He was secretary of the regular Sequoyah movement. Mr. Norman is 1-16 Cherokee, is a prolific writer and is especially well versed in the history of his people.

The News was very glad to receive a call from this fellow democrat and invited him to make some references to his candidacy for publication. He said:

"I find my candidacy here is favorable with the people, and I would like for the people of the state in the five congressional districts when they come to cast their vote for the state officers to look to the interests of the democratic party and vote in order that they will place the state officers over the state general in the several congressional districts in a manner that will give universal satisfaction to the democratic party."

I find that the First Congressional district has eight candidates for state offices and the second has seven, the third has only four, the fourth has seventeen and the fifth has eleven.

The third Congressional district has 30,000 democratic voters; the northern half of the state has 16,000 more democratic voters than the southern has. I would ask each and every democratic voter of the state to consider this matter when they go to the polls to vote on the 2nd day of August and scatter these state officers over the Congressional districts in order that they may give satisfaction to the democrats of the state. In the third district there are only three offices being represented by four candidates. I will have one opponent in my district, and if the democrats will give us these three offices, the third district will feel satisfied.

I will further add that it is not necessary for the democratic voters to place on the Corporation Board a practicing attorney, but the kind of representation that should be on the board should be composed of common-sense, level headed, practical business men of experience, they will give more universal satisfaction to the general interests of the state than the practicing lawyers.

I stand for: Two-cent railroad fare; for reasonable freight rates; for the guarantee law; for the grandfather clause; for equal justice and protection to all, special privileges to none.

MA. EBNEY'S CANDIDACY VIEWED WITH FAVOR

Hon. W. H. Ebney, candidate for Insurance Commissioner, is being heard from as he cuts through the state in the interest of his candidacy. He is 21 years residence in Oklahoma; always associated with its more important affairs in a manner which has awarded him wide and favorable acquaintance, is making his canvas natural and easy.

Mr. Braley, Mr. Ebney's business associate, states that the nature and extent of the letters of return to those of notice of Mr. Ebney's candidacy from all sections of the state indicate all that is desirable.

Mr. Ebney is a home man and should receive the solid support of Pontotoc County.

Mr. J. T. Foot, manager of the Duran Nursery Company, one of the most prosperous ones in the state, is here this week with headquarters at the Chapman hotel.

A BUSY TIME AT THE E. C. S. N.

It may be said literally something is doing at the Normal today and promises to continue throughout this week. About one hundred and fifty students are taking examinations for teachers' certificates, while a few of the prospective teachers will be satisfied with county certificates, by far the greater number are aspiring to state normal certificates.

Examination days are seldom looked forward to with pleasure by either student or teacher, Normal schools not excepted. Often everything you ever did know leaves your head a good deal quicker than it got there even if you did sit up till two the night before and learn it all. Although it is aside from our story, and though the days of cramming for exams have long since passed (?) into history, we venture some one reverted to type this week.

When the papers are handed in then it is that the student gets even with the instructor so to speak, for they must be graded and it comes the teachers time to sit up, wonder, guess and figure a few things. Such a task is confronting members of the normal faculty this week, and more than that there are the certificates of attendance to issue, besides teacher's certificates. Then there is the pleasant little bit of work to do in the way of making a county institute report for each county that worked in conjunction with the state normal, and, there is more reporting, the state normal report must be made. These of course go to the state superintendent.

But every sweet has its bitter, and all things must be bought with a price. The certificates will reward the laborers who will go forth to battle with ignorance and—well we hope nothing else.

Some Fun Out of Deputy

Deputy Sheriff John Kitchens of Stonewall had a rather hard night's work for nothing last night.

Some one cut the lock of the calaboose and let a prisoner out. While Kitchens looked till midnight for the bird that had flown, his search was in vain. Then at the time he was ready for a good snooze, a phone message from Franks came, calling him over there to quell some drunks. He went—but found everything so quiet that he turned away in disgust without disturbing the slumbering inhabitants.

Thompson His Daughter-in-Law

By Louise Spencer

"So we're the decoration committee, we three—you and Jean and I." Mrs. Jones stood in the middle of the lodge room of the new club house and looked critically at the broad expanse of undecorated wall. Then, pulling off her gloves looking with a teasing smile at Robert Hastings, she went on: "I see how you manage it, Robert. Nothing like being the son of the president of the club, and having any one you want appointed on your committees. And only last month you and Jean were on the house committee together!"

"Fiddlesticks!" replied the young man abruptly. "On my word of honor I didn't know Jean was on the committee till you told me. Come, let's look over these pictures and have them ready to hang."

"Here she is now, the dear!" exclaimed Mrs. Jones, hurrying to greet the new comer, a frank-eyed young girl, whose graceful step and fresh color declared her athletic distillation. She looked inquiringly at Robert as soon as she was free from Mrs. Jones' embrace.

"Can't help it, Jean. I'm not responsible," said the young man with an air of indifference, as he arranged the pictures in a row against the wall for inspection.

The club house door swung noisily open and the president, Mr. Hastings, entered the room. He was an athletic, white-haired man, past middle age, whose pleasant, frank eyes, and simple smile, always brought the light into Jean's girlish face.

"This is good," he said, laying a fatherly hand on her shoulder. "You and Bob are doing good team work again. How you have improved the place, Mrs. Jones! A fire there on Granger Malton had ambitions. If it had not been so he never would have attained the eminence in the world that was his, for only dogged persistence, an iron will and desire for power would have sufficed to overcome the handicaps that had been his as poverty-stricken boy and youth.

Now that all things material were his, he began to yearn for other joys—social supremacy, for one. Shrewd enough to realize the race was run for himself, he centered his schemes and hopes on his only son, Hadley. It made him satisfied with life and repaid him for his struggles when he looked at Hadley, who was everything his father was not—big, handsome, clever of speech and graceful of manner, so distinguished by his spirit of sheer good nature and well being that he was always a marked man when he entered a room. He drew people to him by a magnetism that was irresistible. He was pointed out by the crowd as a shining exception to the general run of extremely rich men's sons, and Granger Malton let himself dream dreams as to Hadley's future, especially concerning his marriage.

Hadley's mother, long dead, had sprung from the same class as Granger himself, and as the older man looked back through the vista of years and recalled her, colorless, faithful, commonplace and awkward, he wondered a little sadly what she would have done with the money and the granite palace and the power that would have been hers. Stern honesty told him she would have done nothing—would have sunk beneath the weight in awkward terror.

He could fancy her shrinking through the big halls of the home he and Hadley occupied. No; Mary would

The Training of Simpkins

By John Philip Artie

When Simpkins began calling at Paradise flat, which is the name Caroline and Edwina have given their girl bachelor apartment, his hostess agreed that he was rather a bore. But as time went on and he continued to come with marked regularity they both found him interesting, although they did not confide this fact to each other. On the contrary, they still spoke of him with good-natured derision and never for a moment owned that any elaboration of dress on the evenings he was expected had any connection with his visits.

There was something touching in the naive manner with which Simpkins consulted them on many little social points. He admitted that he had never had the opportunity of learning much about the intricacies of good form until he had the advantage of their acquaintance. So they began to feel that he was their mission.

"What colored necktie shall I wear with my new gray spring suit?" he asked one evening.

"A green one of a soft dull shade," suggested Edwina.

"I think a gray one, a little lighter than the suit, with a touch of red in it, will be much smarter," said Caroline.

"Gray and red is so commonplace," said Edwina.

"I don't think so," returned Caroline firmly.

Simpkins, after declaring that he would provide himself with neckties of both kinds, hastened to change the subject.

This difference of opinion was the beginning of many disagreements in regard to Simpkins. However, he continued to consult them and his path grew more smooth when they began to receive him separately. Caroline pleaded a headache on the night of one visit and Edwina was excused on account of fatigue on another evening. So it became the custom for only one girl to appear when he called.

On the day that Caroline happened upon Simpkins and Edwina lunching together downtown, she haughtily declined his invitation to join them. She also refused to see him that evening, though it was her turn to entertain him. She insisted that she had important letters to write.

The next morning when she started to her office, as usual, a few minutes later than Edwina, she found Simpkins loitering on the corner.

"This is Saturday, and I hope that you'll go to the matinee with me," said he so humbly that she could not find it in her heart to decline.

"Perhaps he doesn't prefer Edwina, after all," she told herself when they had parted. "If he accidentally met her downtown yesterday noon, very likely she gave him the opportunity to invite her to lunch. Even very nice girls do that sort of thing sometimes, though I should never have expected such forwardness of Edwina."

"Where were you this afternoon, Caroline?" asked Edwina that evening. "I thought you were coming home early."

"I did intend to, but I went to the matinee."

"Oh, I see," remarked Edwina with icy sweetness. "How very nice! I hope you enjoyed it!"

"Very much indeed, thank you."

"Do you know, Caroline, I always think that a man who goes to the matinee is rather silly. Goodness, there's the bell! You didn't expect him—any one, to night, did you?"

"Of course not. You know he was here last night."

"Well, it's his ring, anyway. Will you see him? You'll have to, for I have important letters to write."

When Caroline opened the door for the caller he said immediately that he wanted to see both of them.

"I've got something to tell you that I want you both to hear," stumblingly announced Simpkins after Edwina had been summoned. "I tried to tell you, Miss Edwina, at lunch yesterday, but somehow I didn't succeed, and this afternoon I meant to tell you, Miss Caroline, at the matinee, but I couldn't, so I just made up my mind to run in tonight."

"You are awfully good friends of mine and I don't believe I should ever have gained my great happiness if it hadn't been for the splendid advice you have given me. I know you'll be glad to hear that I'm engaged to Mrs. Welby, my landlady."

"We hope you'll be very happy," said Edwina.

"I'm sure I shall," returned Simpkins fatuously, "and I shall tell her how grateful she must be to you two for making me anywhere near worthy of her. I'm sorry I can't stay longer, but she's expecting me."

"We wouldn't detain you for the world," said both girls at once. Then, scarcely waiting for the door to close behind their guest, they burst into the friendliest kind of laughter.

Let Me Enjoy.

Let me enjoy the earth no less
Because the all-enacting Might
That fashioned forth its loveliness
Had other aims than my delight.

About my path there sits a Fair,
Who throws me not a word or sign;
I will find charm in her uncare,
And laud those lips not meant for mine.

From manuscripts of moving song,
Inspired by scenes and souls unknown,
I'll pour out raptures that belong
To others, as they were my own.

Perhaps some day, toward Paradise
And all its blest—if such should be—
I shall lift glad, afar-off eyes,
Though it contain no place for me.
